1. INTRODUCTION

This is the third provisional list that contains all the micromoths, which include the pyralids and plumes that have been recorded in St Helens. Unfortunately, this section of moths is generally under recorded, as most people who moth trap tend not to record them. This is mainly due to the difficulty of identification, and most only have a Latin name, which tends to put people off.

2. INTRODUCTION TO MICRO LIST

Status of species

The following terms are used.

Resident	Recorded regularly or fairly regularly in the area.
Visitor	Small numbers recorded in the area.
Vagrant	Irregular records for the area i.e. occasional records, or out of habitat records.
Migrant	Irregular records from overseas.

Degree of abundance and distribution

A	B
Degree of abundance	Distribution
Common	Widespread
Fairly common	Fairly widespread
Uncommon	Local
Scarce
Rare

The following basic information is given for each species

Bradley & Fletcher number (BFNO), this is the scientific sequence of moths and butterflies.

English name, followed by number of records (in brackets) for the uncommon species only.

Scientific name with author,

Status summary.

Records:

For the commoner species, only dates of the first known records are given (unless otherwise stated).

Some of the records are followed with (PER), "probably earlier records". Which means that the species is so common, that there are probably dates preceding the period covered by this booklet.

For the scarcer species, recorders initials and full dates (were known) are given

Flight times

These can vary from year to year, depending on the weather, but are taken as the average times.

Caterpillar foodplant

Most larvae will eat a variety of foodplants, but some can be very specific.

The following systematic lists contain the data for 376 Microlepidoptera, including 52 Pyralid and 11 Plume Moths.

The recording criteria is as follows:

- Migrant/Vagrant. Rare 1-10 records
- Migrant/Vagrant. Scarce 11-30 records
- Visitor. 31-50 records
- Resident. 50+ records
- (New) Species newly recorded for St Helens after 2004
